CPA Annual Meeting: Nominations for CPA Officers Due

The Chesapeake Paddlers Association is a volunteer organization, and the people who volunteer the most are the elected officers: The Coordinator, Treasurer, Membership Secretary, and the Steering Committee members. Now is the time to tell us who you think should play an active part in steering the club's activities. As always in recent years, in addition to balloting at the Annual Meeting on Sunday, November 6 at the T. Howard Duckett Recreation Center in Laurel, MD, you will be able to nominate and vote online. Nominate someone who you think will help play an active role over the next year to vote on issues, create fun activities, and keep the participation of the club lively through 2017. The descriptions of the officers in our By-Laws read as follows:

The Steering Committee The property and business of the club shall be managed under the direction of the Steering Committee. The Steering Committee will make all decisions about operational activities of the club, unless specified otherwise in these bylaws. As a rule, routine decisions about specific club activities will be the responsibility of the individuals managing those activities, but they may be overridden by the Steering Committee if needed. The Steering Committee will determine which events are to be considered official CPA activities. If appropriate, it may set standards for such determinations so that it need not consider each activity, and it may then delegate to individual club members the responsibility for applying those standards to determine whether specific activities are official CPA activities.

The Coordinator shall have overall responsibility for administration of the club and will be a primary point of contact for the club. S/he shall chair general club membership meetings and meetings of the

The Connecticut Lakes: Source of a Mighty River

By Ralph Heimlich

The Connecticut River is one of New England's longest, cutting a 410-mile path between New Hampshire and Vermont and through Massachusetts and Connecticut to the sea. While the headwaters of this giant are not navigable even by small boats, dams on the nascent river create open water for kayaks and canoes. Dave Isbell and I had paddled the navigable Upper Connecticut from Canaan, NH, to Hanover, NH (see ACK Vol 24 No. 7 October 2015; <http://www.connecticutriverpaddlerstrail.org/node/1591>). Now we were joined by Dick Rock and Greg Welker for an exploration of the headwaters before doing 75 miles of the river proper. This would be a mixed flotilla of two sea kayaks, a solo canoe, and Greg's Kruger Sea Wind. Paddling here is a joy, because the 25,000 acre (10,000 ha) Connecticut Lakes Natural Area was set aside as a land conservation project by the NH Fish and Game Department, with help from The Nature Conservancy, in 2002.

For our base, we chose the New Hampshire State Park at Lake Francis, a small park with camping and water access near Pittsburg, NH. We arrived only a day after a wild thunderstorm and confirmed 75 mph tornado that snapped trees like jackstraws and cut the park off from road access. Piles of broken spruce trees confirmed the storm's ferocity. Other choices are the Deer Mountain Campground, and numerous private hotels and lodges in and around Pittsburg. On our first day after arriving, we piled in the truck to drive 22 miles to the Canadian border.

New Hampshire State Route 3, dubbed "Moose Alley", winds along the course of the infant river through alder bogs and across brooks and ponds. Forewarned by numerous signs, we kept sharp eyes peeled for wading Moose, but were not rewarded with a sighting. We parked and negotiated the weirdest trailhead through the U.S. Customs barrier and up a steep trail along from border monument to border monument gaining 482 feet in elevation to Fourth Connecticut Lake, the source of the river. The trail wound around the pond that is Fourth Lake, and we were somewhat disconcerted by the blank space on the GPS screen that is Canada all around us (Here be monsters?)

Service to Chesapeake Paddlers Association

The Chesapeake Paddlers Association is a volunteer organization. That means that ALL the activities and trips listed on our calendar and many "behind-the-scenes" activities that get little fan-fare are the work of individual CPA members who volunteer to serve other members in the club. I often hear from members that "CPA ought to do...." followed by all kinds of good (and bad) ideas for things that "CPA" should do. For a volunteer organization, this is a perverse attitude because only committed individuals volunteering DO ANYTHING in our organization. No matter how good your idea for CPA activities is, it won't happen unless YOU are willing to pitch in and make it a reality.

During the four years of my tenure as Coordinator, I've instituted a formal awards program that recognizes CPA volunteers who have gone above and beyond the usual in their service to CPA. These awards have gone to leaders of major club events and activities, but you generally find that those all-star volunteers have held elective office in the club, served as captains of Piracies, and volunteered on the newsletter, or other non-elective jobs as well over long years as members. Below is a list of the awardees and the citations on their plaques:

2013: Brian Blankinship-- For originating, developing, and sustaining the Chesapeake Paddlers Association, Inc., Sea Kayaking On-Water Training (SK102) at Lake Anna, Virginia, for 15 years, serving as CPA Coordinator 2003-2005, Pier 7 Pirate Captain 1998-2000, and numerous other roles in the club since 1996.

2013: Marshall Woodruff-- For originating, developing, and sustaining the Chesapeake Paddlers Association, Inc., Kent Island Practice Paddle (KIPP) Series. KIPP has fostered confidence, endurance and rough water paddling skills in participants since 2006.

2014: Suzanne Farace-- For originating and leading the annual CPA Gear Day from 2008-12, leading CPA's Introduction to Sea Kayaking (SK101) course in 2010-13, co-leading a beginner course for Kayak Camping, serving on the Steering Committee in 2009, leading numerous day and camping trips, and participating in many CPA events and activities since joining in 2005.

2014: Gina Cicotello-- For originating and leading the annual CPA Gear Day from 2008-11, leading CPA's Introduction to Sea Kayaking (SK101) course in 2010-11, co-leading the Greenland Paddle Workshop from 2006-13, serving on the Steering Committee in 2009-10, leading numerous day and camping trips, and participating in many CPA events and activities since joining in 2002.

2015: Sue and Rich Stevens-- For serving the administrative needs of the Chesapeake Paddlers Association, Inc. as Membership Secretary since 2006 and Treasurer since 2007, Pirates of Arundell coordinators since 2006, SC members since 2006, leading numerous day trips and support activities, and participating in many CPA events and activities since joining in 1999.

2015: Catriona Miller-- For originating and leading the CPA Boat and Paddle Workshop from 2013-14, organizing and leading CPA's Sea Kayaking Skills Clinic (SK102) course in 2014-15, serving as registrar for SK102 in 2012-13, organizing the CPA Gear Day in 2013, organizing the Cold Water Clinic in 2014 and recording and posting the talk in 2013, co-managing CPA's website, forum and Face Book pages since 2013, serving on the Steering Committee in 2012-13, and participating in many CPA events and activities since joining in 2010. I've nominated and the SC has approved two new awards for 2016. Come to the Annual Meeting on November 6 to find out who they are.

CPA Officers--Some of the people who volunteer the most are the elected officers: The Coordinator, Treasurer, Membership Secretary, and the Steering Committee members. Now is the time to nominate those who will play an active part in steering the club's activities over the next year. Nominations are open until October 1 for ALL CPA officers, but at the core of the volunteers is the backbone of CPA governance, the Steering Committee. The SC does exactly what its name implies: Wields the steering oar of our organization's boat. Everything the Coordinator does, every proposal for a new trip or event, and every change in policy and procedure for CPA has to have the approval of the SC. They do not just stay in the background, however. Individually, they play important roles in CPA (web site, instruction, communications, membership, treasurer, logo wear sales, trip leading etc.), as you can see by looking at who makes up the current SC on the masthead page. The workload isn't onerous and we do nearly all of it online, but it is critical to keeping CPA running.

Like any volunteer organization, other commitments tug at SC members, and every year we lose a few and need to elect new Steering Committee members. This year both Dave Isbell and Carol Collins have decided to step down, and Bill Smith is seeking another office, so there are three open seats on the SC. I am stepping down as Coordinator. Of course, any member can run for any office (it would actually be nice to have some contested elections for a change). If you have been actively participating in CPA activities over the last few years, you have an opportunity (and a responsibility) to consider becoming part of the SC and guiding the club's future. You can read the formal responsibilities of an SC member (and other officers) at <http://www.cpkayaker.com/about-cpa/bylaws/>. Per the bylaws, we are actively seeking nominees until October 1 (see the link at <http://www.cpkayaker.com/index.php?page=nominations>) in preparation for the election at the Annual Meeting in November, so start composing your "Stump Speech" for The Paddler. Please give the opportunity some thought. ☺

Lives in: Severna Park, MD

Real job: Construction Manager for RE Construction

Do you regularly attend a Piracy? Pirates of Arundel

Number of years paddling? Sea Kayaking 9 years

How did you get involved in sea kayaking? I was always a canoer but, I was invited to join some friends on a November Sea Kayaking trip to the La Chennault Islands in the upper peninsula of Michigan. I later moved to Florida and became a regular kayaker with two different paddle clubs.

What boat do you paddle? Valley Nordkapp 18'-0 foot Kevlar layup, red over white

Rudder or skeg? Neither, the Nordkapp's stern acts as a skeg

Type paddle used? Greenland

Do you do any other type of paddling besides sea kayaking? I started canoeing over 50 years ago with my dad and brother. In 1985 I took lessons and began 20 plus years of white water canoeing.

Do you regularly do any other outdoor activities? I like to hike and camp, especially canoe camping. I used to cross country ski a lot until I moved to Florida

How often on average do you paddle between May and October? Normally once or twice a week, but this summer has been a challenge due to my work schedule.

Do any winter paddling? Yes, I try to get out about once a month

Favorite local paddling location? Eastern Neck Island, Kent Island and a few areas in the bay south of Annapolis. I like areas that are not so crowded and have nice sand beaches to stop on.

Favorite CPA trip you've ever been on and why? I like the fall Chickahominy trip and the KIPP paddles. The KIPP paddles are great for anyone who wants to increase their skill level. The KIPP paddlers are a dedicated group with a great following.

Coolest paddling trip you've ever been on anywhere and why? I have two stand out trips-both are in Canada. The Sand River on the north shore of Lake Superior in Lake Superior Provincial Park near Wawa, Ontario. This is a physically challenging trip with 29 portages and many waterfalls and rapids-including Lady Evelyn Falls, the second highest waterfall in Ontario. The scenery was awesome and so was the wildlife with black bears and moose. We started this trip the last week of September and it was already getting very cold at night.

The other trip was the Rivera Bonaventure in Quebec. We started this trip in May which is too early to be that far north; the mountain was still covered with patches of snow and there were several frozen waterfalls. The river starts from the top of the Chick choc Mountains on the Gaspé Peninsula and ends in the Atlantic Ocean. The river is very clean and fast running. We were traveling at 7 mph without paddling. This mountain has the highest moose population in Quebec so we observed several.

Scariest/most dangerous trip/experience and why? My scariest paddle adventure was on the Stoney River in Western PA-my first time down the river. I was fairly new to White water canoeing and decided to join a group on the Stoney. The Stoney has about 17 rapids in 5 miles with some right after the other-not much break in between. This was my first attempt in a solo canoe so my skill level was low. I think I swam every rapid, got sucked into many holes and was trashed from one end to the other. I was wearing a dry-top but not enough underneath for the constant dunking. By the end of the day I was cold, tired and just plain wrecked. I paddled that river several times since; this was our training river when I went for my ACA instructor certificate so I learned to master it but would still have vivid memories from my first time down.

Future bucket list trips: Boundary Waters, Isle Royale and Alaska

Three things you like most about paddling? I like paddling because it gives me stress relief, a chance to play in the water, and good companionship. Paddlers are always great company

What do you like about CPA? It's a good way to hook up with other paddlers as paddle partners, people with similar interests, and mentors to improve your skill level. CPA has a lot of good people

One unusual, non-paddling thing other people find interesting about you?: I drove to Alaska with my wife and two daughters, this was a 12,200 mile trip over 5 ½ weeks. My daughters were 12 and 4 years old at the time. ☺

The Treasurer shall perform all the duties generally incident to the office of Treasurer, subject to the control of the Steering Committee and the oversight of the Coordinator. The Treasurer shall have custody of all the funds and securities of the club, and s/he shall keep full and accurate account of receipts and disbursements. Such records shall be the property of the club. S/he shall deposit all such moneys and other valuables in the name and to the credit of the club. The Treasurer shall disburse the funds of the club consistent with Section seven of these bylaws. S/he shall provide financial information to the Coordinator or the Steering Committee in a timely fashion as requested.

The Secretary shall perform all duties generally incident to the office of Secretary, subject to the control of the Steering Committee and the oversight of the Coordinator. S/he has primary responsibility for maintaining club membership records, but may delegate day-to-day administration of that task to another club member. S/he shall give notice of all meetings of the general membership or the Steering Committee and all other notices required by these bylaws. The Secretary shall record the proceedings of all meetings of the general membership and of the Steering Committee. All records of the Secretary shall be the property of the club.

Our webmasters, have created an online form you can use to enter nominations. Nominations must be entered BEFORE OCTOBER 1 Use it at <http://www.cpakayaker.com/index.php?page=nominations>

Persons nominated can use another online tool to accept or decline their nomination, and to post a "Stump Speech" giving their experience and reasons why members should vote for them. These will be printed in the October issue of The Chesapeake Paddler and viewable online. If you see someone already nominated who you would support in November, then second their nomination by clicking on the text at the bottom of their nomination that says Second Them! For each additional confirmation, the nominee will get a blue star to show their popularity. Note that nominations are NOT the same as voting. Nominations will show who is favored for an office or for the Steering Committee, and will eventually lead to the ballot for voting on positions in the coming year. This year, in addition to mail-in ballots and voting at the November Annual Meeting, there will be an online mechanism for voting, and you will need your CPA member number to authenticate your vote. The votes will be tallied at the Annual Meeting and will determine which individuals will hold which positions for the coming year. So, throw your paddling hat in the ring, or throw someone else the ring, but let the best candidates win! ☺

Camp at Lake Francis State Park, NH

Naw, just Canadians!). Once so remote that settlers seceded from BOTH the U.S. and Canada, establishing their own Indian Stream Republic, this area is still little visited. The view from the heights around Fourth Lake back into Maine and New Hampshire was inspiring, and we scouted out the other Connecticut Lakes, our paddling venue for the next few days. On the way back to camp, we scouted each of the lakes in turn. Third Connecticut Lake is a small (231 acre; 93 ha) but deep (up to 100 feet) natural lake that we surveyed from the parking lot, but decided against paddling.

Fourth Connecticut Lake looking south toward U.S.

Next day, we loaded up the boats and drove up to Second Connecticut Lake, a reservoir of some 1,102 acres (458 ha) with a nice public launch just off NH 3. We paddled up the lake against the western shore to shelter from a 5-10 kt wind, intending to follow the interconnecting river up toward Third Lake. Families of loons fished the lake, and we roused a flock of Goose (not Moose) as we turned up the river. Merganser and Teal winged off as we paddled up the narrowing river. We got as far as the bridge carrying the East Inlet Road, then turned around as the cobbled bottom came too close for comfort in our composite boats. The wind had picked up as we returned, making a bit of heavy going for the canoes. We went back to the launch, and then paddled on down to the dam.

Loading up again, we headed down the road to First Connecticut Lake, the largest of the four ( 3,071 acres; 1,243 ha), it is the eighth-largest lake located entirely in New Hampshire. We drove to a picnic area overlooking the dam for a late lunch and observed that First Lake seemed to have more power boat traffic than any of the others, all seemingly in search of the Connecticut Lake. We chose the road to the East Inlet launch, another small dam creating a narrow lake with a long, meandering tail through dense alder swamps. Compared to other launches, this little beach was positively crowded with paddlers (there were 3), both coming back and heading out. But East Inlet is a little (60 acre), shallow jewel of an Adirondack-like pond, with red spruce, fir and white pine on the drier hillsides and alder, tamarack and black spruce cloak the wetter areas. landlocked salmon, lake, brook and rainbow trout, and chain pickerel lurking in the 163 foot depths here.

Back at camp, we took the portage trail alongside the Connecticut River running between First Lake and Lake Francis. The river here is a rushing, gushing whitewater torrent dropping 259 feet in two miles. With a spring run, it may be navigable by whitewater boaters, but it looked pretty impassable to us. The sound of rushing water over the shade-dappled rocks was a cool refuge, and great habitat for brookies (restricted to fly fishing only).

Connecticut River above Lake Francis

Afternoon rain in the forecast suggested that we paddle Lake Francis so that we could beat a hasty retreat to camp, so we got an early start, launching at the camp boat launch. Lake Francis is 1,934 acre (783 ha) reservoir created by Murphy Dam, and pooling to 82 feet in depth. We paddled up the river to the point where the rapids ended, then along the eastern edge of the lake to a point called the “Six Mile View” down the lake toward Murphy Dam. Eagles and Osprey soared overhead, and families of Loons and Mergansers dove for fish in the lake. The 162-mile Cohos Trail (originating in the White Mountains) winds around the southern shore of the lake, following old logging roads, then turns up the east shore crossing the river at the River Road covered bridge before continuing loosely parallel to the river up to the Canadian Border at Fourth CT Lake.

We ducked into Dead Water Brook and landed on a muddy island for lunch, as rain clouds threatened. Shortly after re-embarking, the deluge began and we paddled to the main lake before thunder started to boom and we landed in sight of the dam to wait out the worst of it. After a respite, we were back on the lake paddling for the northern shore when the rain started again and we were forced ashore at the Lake Francis Ramp. We huddled under a tree (or in Dick’s case, in the porta-potty) as lightning flashed and thunder boomed. Eventually the rain slacked off and quiet resumed, so we could get back on the water and paddle the rest of the way along the northern shore, back to the State Park. For our final day in the lakes region, a crisper 60-degree day following the cold front brought by the rain, we drove back to Second

This peaceful paddle was a fitting farewell to our time in the far northern Connecticut Lakes. The remainder of the day was spent sorting and drying gear and slimming down from our “luxurious” car camping equipment to

There, we parked our trucks and met up with Scott Edwards, who runs Hemlock Pete's Canoes in Orange, VT, our shuttle for boats, gear and ourselves up to Lancaster, NH, for the 75-mile downriver run.
